SWAG!

Strong Women Approaching Greatness

Let's get to it, let's not deny it, let's claim it, let's pursue it, let's focus on it, and let's make it happen with NO APOLOGIES, to our society, our colleagues, our friends, our families or our children. The Age-old Question "Can I have it all?" has always been an ambiguous self-flagellating, self-defeating statement, the answer as you will read in the book, is YES! Spiritually, Emotionally Physically, you will be able to look back and say YES, I have done my best, and not only do I feel good, but others around me feel good, and I have contributed in every way I was meant to in this life, and I am excited to move forward, and Approach

My Greatness

Now the question is "What is My Greatness?" well it means different things to us all, but among most of us it is self-sufficiency, the ability to pay for oneself in all manners of life, for others like me, it means supporting a whole family on what I have created in my career. What we forget is the need to RETIRE, the end of working towards self-sufficiency and the start of getting off the rollercoaster. Greatness for others will mean recognition, in their field in their lifetime, in their families. Although we all have something to prove, be it just to ourselves or to others, we need to understand our needs and focus on it to get there, with again NO APOLOGIES. Greatness for others may mean being the best wife and mother we can be, and that is just as difficult, but reminding ourselves that wives and mothers do not get paid in cash money, and if we are left we need to have talents and traits that we have developed in order to maintain a lifestyle of Greatness.

Join me in a journey, spiritually, emotionally, mentally and physically gaining strength and getting prepped for the next chapter of our lives, gaining access and tapping into the person we want to become. This book isn't just for women, but we do have a greater struggle, the guilt that comes with working 12-to-15-hour days, and neglecting our family and friends, or the inner feeling that we could, BE more and DO more if we just put ourselves first. men reading this book should know that it is for you also, to understand better yourselves, your partners and this world we are navigating through, growing and stepping into our SWAG.
